ZUNDELL SUGGESTS COUNTY BARGAINING

Clifford M. Zundell, immediate past president of the Hampden County Selectmen's Association and Republican candidate for Hampden County Commissioner, said today he believes the 24 communities in the county should establish a central organization that could lead to greater effectiveness in collective bargaining with municipal employees.

Said Mr. Zundell:

"In the cities and in the towns everyone is organized. The teachers are organized. The department of public works employees are organized. The policemen and firemen are organized to the extent that they can press effectively for state legislation in their efforts in behalf of higher salaries. And if there are any groups in the cities and towns that do not have organization and representation, they soon will have.

"Everyone is organized, it seems to me, except the selectmen and the mayors.

"Each handles his own collective bargaining in his own community, and that's it. There is no coordination body, no central source of information and statistics.

"I have been urging for a long time that the communities should get together in the interests of some degree of standardization, and I believe that the county commission could become the central point for the creation of such an organization. Certainly, the county government as the next echelon of government in our lives should have the basic interests of the cities and towns at heart.

"Certainly there is a matter of inter-community communications that could—and I believe should—be handled by the county commission as we move further into this new era of municipal collective bargaining."

Mr. Zundell, now in his second term as a member of the Longmeadow board of selectmen and presently chairman of that board, said "I would remind my fellow town officials that municipal collective bargaining has just really begun, and is going to be an important part of city and town administration from now on."

"Those of us who are charged with the responsibility for orderly growth and reasonable economy should make every effort to be effective negotiators in our communities, and I think a big step can be taken in this direction through the Hampden County Commission on which I seek to serve."

OPENING DAY

At Shea's field Sunday, May 26, Agawam Interchurch Baseball League opened it's eighth season under blue skies, and all around good day for baseball.

Before the ball got rolling, Rev. Blanchard of St. John the Evangelist lead both teams in prayer befitting the occasion. The boys lines up on the first and third base lines thier heads bowed in solemn prayer, tried hard to conceal the excitement building up inside.

The St. Anthony Crusaders took the field and the first man of the defending champion, St. John Leprechauns walked to the plate. After the first half inning the Leprechauns had expressed their determination with two runs. The Crusaders who also picked up on grudgingly given run in the first relinquished another in the second. The fans who after the first two innings had settled down to a real spectators delite walked away under long shadows shaking thier heads. Between the second and final seventh inning the Crusaders riddled the field with hits and won going away 14-3.

Schedules for the season were listed in last week's Agawam News.

CON CON EFFORT IN STRETCH DRIVE

Senator John M. Quinlan, at a State House press conference last Thursday, launched the final effort by an army of volunteers to gather enough signatures to bring the question of a Massachusetts Constitutional Convention before the voters.

In a room jammed with supporters of the petition drive — described by the Boston Globe as "...the largest press conference in the history of the Senate Reading Room" — Quinlan vowed that the required 10,206 additional signatures will be collected before the June 26 deadline.

Last fall, more than 85,000 voters signed an initiative petition to bring the Convention issue before the Legislature. The petition called upon the Legislature to do nothing more than place the Constitutional Convention question on the ballot.

Under Article 48 of the Massachusetts Constitution, the Legislature was mandated to conduct hearings on the petition, report it out of Committee with written majority and minority reports, and vote on it by Roll Call — one way or another — before May 1.

May 1 has passed, and there has been no report from the legislative committee responsible and no vote by the Legislature. Senator Quinlan declared, referring to the failure of the Legislature to comply with Article 48 of the Constitution, "This is, I am compelled to say, a display of contempt, not only for the thousands of sincerely concerned citizens who signed this petition, but also for the very process by which our Constitution decrees that their request should be considered.

"Nevertheless," the Senator continued, "the issue cannot be swept under the rug of legislative indifference and hostility. If, in its isolated sanctuary, the Legislature can shut out the sight of a society in danger of being overwhelmed by the problems of its own growth and change; if it can block out the sound of voices crying to correct the dilemma; there is still recourse.

"And so, we will again gather signatures.

"Beginning today," Senator Quinlan explained, "and for the next six weeks, the more than three thousand people who collected signatures last fall will recanvass Massachusetts, from Williamstown to Provincetown, to gather at least 10,206 additional certified signatures. This avenue is provided in our Constitution so that when the Legislature rejects a properly filed initiative petition, or when it declines even to recognize the petition's existence, the people can place the question directly on the ballot and make the ultimate decision.

"We will collect these signatures because we believe that it is time now — it is more than fifty years since our last Constitutional Convention — for the people of this Commonwealth to take a long, hard, comprehensive, and informed look at the structure of our government.

"We will collect these signatures because we believe that only a nonpartisan, popularly elected Convention, standing apart from the day-to-day political hurly-burly of the Legislature, can hope to face the fundamental problem of equipping a responsible, flexible form of government to cope with the staggering complexities and whirlwind changes that characterize our times."

If the Constitutional Convention is approved by the voters in 1968, and approved again — as it must be — in 1970, it will be convened in 1971.

At that time it will, under the terms of this initiative, be preceded by a preparatory commission to lay the groundwork of research. It will be prohibited from considering the existing Bill of Rights, the judiciary, and questions pertaining to the structure of the legislative and executive branches, the Executive Council, county government, and future methods of amending the Constitution. All proposed amendments will be placed before the voters for approval in 1972.

"By this means," Quinlan stated, "at long last, the people of Massachusetts will be able, in a comprehensive and objective way, to exercise the fundamental right — reserved to them in Article 7 of our Constitution — to alter and amend their needs in a changing world."

Senator Quinlan continued, "We are going out to the voters of Massachusetts, and I have no doubt that we will come back with a mandate to get on with the job of bringing Massachusetts government into the 1970's and 80's equipped and prepared to meet awesome challenges these years will present."

Green Thumb Tips

Gardeners desiring tall plants for use against a building or at the back of a border should consider cosmos—especially the Sensation strain.

These plants grow 4 to 5 feet high, have delicate, fine foliage and bear single flowers of white, pink or rose.

In case you didn't know it—cosmos can be disbudded by removing all but the tip bud on each stem and, if the plants also are thinned to stand 3 feet apart, enormous blooms will result. Try this trick!

If you had a planting of sweet alyssum in your garden last year, gently remove the browned skeletons of last year's plants and don't disturb the soil underneath.

Chances are excellent that this annual has self-seeded and that soon innumerable seedlings will sprout to bloom in the same place.

Failures with zinnias, one of the easiest flowers to grow, are almost always due to sowing the seeds too early.

Zinnia seeds rot when soil is cool and damp. Wait until soil is warm, then sow the seeds where the flowers are to bloom, thinning later and transplanting the thinned plants if you wish.

Do you know that there is a bi-color corn with some kernels yellow and some white?

One variety is named Butter and Sugar; is of super eating quality. Just think how this corn will confuse your neighbors!
